Go to Twitter to be heard. Most platforms are shallow & full of jokes. Don't get me wrong jokes are fine, but not when credible info is being shared.

For me It was less about being heard and more about refusing to believe that seemingly good people I've known my whole life are just outright dumb and hateful. That and a penchant for calling out propaganda and fake news.

But they sure owned this lefty. /s

Objetivos Principales

- Descubrir si existen patrones que permitan caracterizar comentarios sarcásticos y predecir la naturaleza de estos últimos.
- Verificar si el sarcasmo es dependiente del contexto en el que está siendo empleado o los patrones pueden ser aplicados de forma global.
- Abordar uno de los principales problemas del procesamiento de lenguaje natural.

Preguntas y Problemas

Es posible predecir un comentario sarcástico a partir de su contenido? ¿Cuál es la mejor forma de predecir esto?

► ¿El patrón de sarcasmo es constante entre un dominio y otro? ¿Influye el tópico en discusión al momento de detectar el sarcasmo?

Existe alguna otra característica a través de la cual se puedan clasificar los comentarios además del sarcasmo?

Experimento 1

Es posible predecir un comentario sarcástico a partir de su contenido? ¿Cuál es la mejor forma de predecir esto?

Metodología

- Se trabajará con los datos de cada comentario con el fin de crear un clasificador.
- Se segmentará el dataset en los distintos subreddits
- Se vectorizará el dataset
- Se entrenarán los 5 clasificadores con los distintos subreddits

Clasificadores utilizados

- Decision Tree
- Support Vector Machine (SVC)
- Linear Support Vector Machine (LinearSVC)
- K-Nearest Neighbors (KNN)
- Dummy Classifier

Subreddits estudiados

r/AskReddit

- Subreddit con mayor cantidad de comentarios (90658)
- Proporción del 72% de comentarios sarcásticos

r/worldnews

- 3er subreddit con más comentarios (51288)
- Proporción del 51% de comentarios sarcásticos

Experimento 1: Conclusiones

- Es posible entrenar un clasificador que reconozca comentarios sarcásticos, obteniendo resultados razonables.
- El mejor desempeño se obtiene con los clasificadores SVC y LinearSVC
- Nos da una idea de la distribución que toman los comentarios sarcásticos
- La proporción de comentarios sarcásticos solo afecta a algunos clasificadores.

Experimento 2

¿El patrón de sarcasmo es constante entre un dominio y otro? ¿Influye el tópico en discusión al momento de detectar el sarcasmo?

Metodología

- Se realizará validación cruzada, entrenando clasificadores con datos de un subreddit en específico y probándolos con datos de los otros subreddits.
- El clasificador que se escogerá será el que obtuvo el mejor desempeño en un tiempo razonable en el experimento anterior.
- Se evaluará el desempeño de los 5 clasificadores y se graficarán los resultados en una matriz de accuracy.

Experimento 2: Conclusiones

- Los clasificadores entrenados con los datos de un subreddit en específico tienen un mejor desempeño al ser evaluados con datos de este mismo subreddit.
- El desempeño del clasificador está correlacionado con la seriedad del tema abordado en el subreddit.

Validación Cruzada:

- Mejor desempeño: Comentarios de r/AskReddit en clasificador entrenado con comentarios de r/politics.
- Accuracy: 76.26%.
- Peor desempeño: Comentarios de r/funny en clasificador entrenado con comentarios de r/AskReddit.
- Accuracy: 58.11%

Experimento 3

Existe alguna otra característica a través de la cual se puedan clasificar los comentarios además del sarcasmo?

Metodología

- Se usarán los pares de subreddits con mejor y peor accuracy de la parte anterior.
- Para cada par de subreddits se unirán los comentarios en una sola tabla.
- Utilizando una nueva librería llamada "sentence_transformers", se utilizará agglomerative clustering en cada tabla, generando dendogramas que permitan la visualización.

Resultados

Dendograma para r/AskReddit + r/politics Dendograma para r/AskReddit + r/funny

Experimento 3: Conclusiones

- Mayor cantidad de clusters en subreddits con menor sinergia, menor dispersión con mayor sinergia.
- Buen desempeño al momento de clasificar en subreddits serios puede deberse a pocos patrones de sarcasmo.
- Mal desempeño al momento de clasificar en subreddits poco serios puede deberse a múltiples patrones disjuntos de sarcasmo.

Futuras direcciones

Planificación futura

- Intentar entrenar el clasificador bajo otros parámetros que no involucren vectorizar el texto.
- Buscar mejores maneras de entrenar un clasificador basado en texto.
- Aprovechar la presencia de comentarios padre en la base de datos para extraer información útil a partir de estos.
